

Event: Career Options for Political Science Students by Abhay Prasad Singh, PGDAV College, University of Delhi.

Organized by: Department of Political Science

Date: September 17, 2019

Number of Participants: 32

The Department of Political Science organized a seminar on Career Options for Political Science Students' by Abhay Prasad Singh, PGDAV College, University of Delhi. The seminar was organized with the intent to guiding them along their career journey. The speaker who is a distinguished faculty was familiar with the fact that he is dealing with the undergraduate students. He started with a considerably basic introduction about the discipline of political Science and the importance which included different aspects of the discipline. In order to understand the students and what is their perception as far as the career options were concerned, he had an informal question round where students expressed their aspirations and aims and the reason for choosing the same. The speaker started with the idea that how the subject is not only confined to the traditional professions of civil services, academia, and law but there had been a diversification of professions and new avenues are being created where the subject is gaining a lot of popularity. The speaker was able to convince the students that with the changing times, increase in population there is a need to look beyond the government services and make use of Political Science in various unexplored domains such as corporate and private sector as well where human resource and public administration has a very important role to play along with encouraging them to study the field of startups as well.